

MEET DEATH WHEN CAR HITS AUTO

MISS ELSIE J. FATHERS AND HER FIANCÉ, CHARLES F. CARR, KILLED IN ACCIDENT ON SUNDAY.

ENTIRE CITY MOURNS

Tragic End of Two Young Persons Who Were Universally Known and Admired Causes Deep Sorrow.

Miss Elsie J. Fathers, only daughter of Mayor and Mrs. James A. Fathers, and her fiancé, Charles F. Carr, son of Mrs. Fidelia Carr, were instantly killed exactly at five o'clock Sunday afternoon when an outgoing interurban car struck their automobile at McKee boulevard and James place, in Spring Brook.

When the heavy trolley car was brought to a jarring stop its length and a half from where the automobile was struck, the automobile was a twisted wreck of iron and steel and the woodwork a mass of splintered boards. Beneath the automobile was the body of Miss Fathers. Carr was under the interurban car. It was necessary to jack this from the tracks to free his body.

Crushed Beyond Recognition. The victims were unrecognizable. A small crowd soon gathered and it was remarked that the automobile looked like a wreck of iron and steel and the woodwork a mass of splintered boards. Beneath the automobile was the body of Miss Fathers. Carr was under the interurban car. It was necessary to jack this from the tracks to free his body.

Beneath the automobile was the body of Miss Fathers. Carr was under the interurban car. It was necessary to jack this from the tracks to free his body.

When the interurban car was brought to a stop, a little over one hundred feet from where the automobile was struck, the body of Miss Fathers was beneath the automobile. Carr's body was wrapped about a low guard plank on the forward part of the front end of the trolley car. Portions of their clothing and remnants of cushions were hastily collected to cover the bodies.

The coroner Frank Ryan was out of the city, and until he was learned nothing was done. After a delay of almost three-quarters of an hour, officers were given to remove the bodies. J. A. Carr, brother of Charles, was secured from the tracks and the car permitted the extraction of Carr's body from about the guard plank of the tracks.

At least six persons were witnesses to the accident. Five of these from their own statements absolve Motorman Messerknecht of Rockford from the blame. These five agree on the following:

Miss Fathers and Carr drove south on McKee boulevard towards the Caloric plant. At James Place they turned west and stopped and then backed up, apparently about to turn right. Carr looked around and saw the approaching car, and then, after stopping, backed up again until the automobile was directly across the rails.

The interurban car struck the automobile. "I screamed as I saw them come together," said one witness. "The automobile was rolled one hundred and five feet by the interurban car. This was the last thing I saw. Messerknecht required to stop the car when he saw the collision inevitable."

His statement a few minutes after the accident was that the automobile was ahead of my car just after it had crossed the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway tracks at the Hough Shade company's plant. The driver of the automobile, looking about him, saw that I pulled my whistle cord and decreased the speed of my car. I was then traveling between ten and twelve miles an hour. The driver of the automobile looked about him, saw that I pulled my whistle cord and decreased the speed of my car. I was then traveling between ten and twelve miles an hour.

All Agree Facts. Miss Florence White, daughter of William L. White, a boarding house keeper at 411 James place, and Florence Landsverk, 429 James place, were playing with rabbits in the yard of the White residence and saw the accident. Lina and Sarah Landsverk, sisters of Florence, were crossing the field at the time. They also saw it, as did E. J. Maath of 309 Elliott street, manager of the Keystone Cement Company, and E. W. Oute of 421 Elliott street. Mr. Ter Maath was in the east side of the track near the cement factory, while Mr. Oute was on the west side.

The witnesses agree that Motorman Messerknecht signalled a warning with his whistle. The fact that he was with the motorman in almost all particular with his statement of what he remembers them.

Interest in the state of the interurban car was not traveling at a speed ordinary to this stretch of track between the crossing of the Milwaukee road tracks at the Hough Shade plant and the Caloric plant a quarter of a mile away.

Nolan Gets Statements. Thomas S. Nolan, attorney for the Rockford & Interurban company, hurried to the scene upon learning of the accident. He talked with Motorman Messerknecht and Conductor Kennedy and the witnesses and secured statements from them. Conductor Kennedy gave a statement that the interurban car was not traveling at a speed ordinary to this stretch of track between the crossing of the Milwaukee road tracks at the Hough Shade plant and the Caloric plant a quarter of a mile away.

After the removal of the bodies at five o'clock Mr. Nolan, Chief Chamberlain and the conductor and the several witnesses compared facts and esablished the theory that Carr, after driving a few feet west onto James Place, after leaving McKee boulevard backed again on the boulevard, saw the car coming and stopped. After stopping it was brought out that Carr looked towards the car and figuring he could cross the tracks and head toward town with his machine, he acted on the impulse with its disastrous results. The automobile was first struck just back of the front wheel. Miss Fathers sat directly in the path of this force. For a short distance the automobile slid along the ground, but the left hind wheel broke, permitting the light car to go over on its side, and from that moment on the automobile rolled onward like a log.

Body Under Automobile. Miss Fathers must have been first struck from her seat and then caught and crushed by the car as it slid and rolled. Her body was beneath the wrecked automobile when the torn wreckage was lifted.

The automobile was first pinned in his seat by the steering wheel and apparatus, and on the first upsetting of the automobile was wrenched out only to be picked up and crushed by the guard plank on the interurban car track.

News of the accident spread like wildfire over the city. The first report was that two men were instantly killed when the automobile was struck by an interurban car at the Caloric factory, in Spring Brook. Who the victims were was at first unknown.

Automobile Struck Interurban. The automobile was struck by an interurban car at the Caloric factory, in Spring Brook. Who the victims were was at first unknown.

August Messerknecht, Rockford, was the motorman on the interurban car. E. A. Keasler, a Rockford engineer, was the driver. A number of passengers were passengers. The car left here for Beloit at five o'clock.

NO INQUEST TO BE ORDERED AS TO BLAME FOR ACCIDENT. After a conference with Mayor James A. Fathers, this morning, District Attorney Stanley Messerknecht announced that he would not call for a coroner's jury to investigate the accident which caused the death of Miss Fathers and Charles Carr late Sunday afternoon.

MAKE DRIVE ON THIRTEEN MILE FRONT

GERMANS REPULSED EXCEPT AT ONE POINT IN LATEST FIGHTING BEFORE VERDUN.

BETHINCOURT OCCUPIED

Evacuation of Position Which French Claim Is Unimportant Gain.

Paris, April 10.—The Germans continued their attacks last night in the Verdun region east and west of the Meuse, on the front thirteen miles long, from hill No. 304 to Fort Douaumont. The war office announcement today says that in fighting west of the river for the possession of Dead Man's Hill, the French were repulsed except on a front of 500 yards near Hill No. 295. East of the river the German assaults gained no appreciable results.

Bethincourt Occupied. Berlin, April 10.—The war office announced today in the fighting near Bethincourt in the Verdun region, that he town and two fortified points were taken by the French. The French were repulsed on a front of 750 yards, two guns and fifteen machine guns. The losses of French in killed or wounded were considerable.

Paris, April 10.—Abandoning the new open formation and the lately established practice of night attack, the Germans yesterday engaged two army corps in direct assaults against the French positions northwest of Verdun, between Avocourt and Cumieres. Forces numbering at least a division and a half charged a line between Avocourt and Bethincourt. They approached with 100 yards of the French trenches and seemed insensible to the fact that hundreds of their men were falling by the way. But notwithstanding their courage and the height of their mass, they were stopped. There was a dead line beyond which they could not pass. When the attacking force was so thinned out by artillery and machine gun fire, the order to retire was given. Twice were they obliged to fill up the gaps in their ranks. The second time, the three onslaughts were repulsed. The French line was considerably strengthened in the region of Bethincourt by the withdrawal of forces from the dangerously exposed positions commanding positions behind the village.

Deliver Third Attack. A third attack of the line was delivered on a position strongly fortified by the French northeast of Avocourt, the object seemingly being to drive in the French line far enough to reach the French line in the south, and constitutes what is characterized as the Gibraltar in the French lines in this district. This attack met with success. The French counter-attacked, and the net result for the Germans was an increase in the losses from the French line. It is stated that at the close of the day the French held exactly the same positions as at the beginning of the assault. The German line was repulsed on a basis of fifty per cent of the offensive engaged and these include a considerable proportion of German reserve.

Results Please French. The success of the latest great hammer stroke of the Germans at Verdun, has already greatly encouraged the French press and public, and confirms still further the general opinion that in the ability of the high command.

IN ENGLAND THEY MAY MAKE MAN TAKE LICENSE TO CARRY A BOTTLE. London, April 10.—A plan is being considered in England to compel a man who wants to carry a bottle of whiskey in his pocket to take out a license. It isn't likely the scheme will be adopted, but it illustrates the trouble the government is having in its attempts to regulate the country's personal habits.

Present English saloon regulations were adopted as a war measure. The intention was to reach two particular classes of people, makers of munitions and other military necessities and the wives of soldiers at the front. The authorities "contended early in the war that excessive drinking by the munition workers was lowering their output. Then came the complaint that soldiers' wives were drinking too much. These women received from the government what are known as "separation allowances" varying somewhat with circumstances, but amounting approximately to from $3 to $4 weekly.

COMMERCIAL CLUB FAVORS PROPOSAL FOR FOURTH OF JULY

Will Take Charge of Arrangements, Providing Enough Funds Can be Secured.

The Janesville Commercial Club will back the proposed Independence Day celebration, Col. Nonesuch and his circus, at providing enough money to warrant the success of the venture as in years past, is assured. This was the sentiment of the board of directors this noon at their weekly meeting and luncheon at the Grand Hotel.

The board accepted the report of the special committee, consisting of Joseph M. Connors, Louis Levy and Amos Roberg, who were delegated to investigate the proposal and turned the matter over to this committee, after accepting their report.

When the question was asked as to who would benefit from the Fourth of July celebration, the merchant members of the board, as a whole, chorused, "Everybody." Mr. Connors reported much enthusiasm being manifested from merchants and citizens and felt assured that the celebration could be made a huge success if backed by the Commercial club.

CLAIM VILLA A DAY AHEAD OF PURSUERS

BANDIT REPORTED TO HAVE PASSED PARAL AND IS HEADING TOWARD DURANGO CITY.

FACE CRITICAL STAGE

Lack of Detail Reports of Pershing's Operations as Drives Into Mexican Interior is Causing Apprehension.

El Paso, April 10.—In his flight from the American cavalry Villa is believed today to have passed Paral with his band, said to number over two hundred men, and is reported to be heading for Durango City. The detachment of the 13th cavalry are hard on the bandits, but no official word has come from the front to indicate their position.

Mexican reports stated today that Villa was a full day ahead of his pursuers. If Villa succeeds in reaching Durango City he probably will be joined by the Aerista brothers, who command over 1,000 men.

With General Pershing's front below Namiagua, April 9, by radio to Columbus, April 10.—Two aeroplanes which flew from here to Chihuahua City, returning early bringing reports to General John J. Pershing, the constitutionalist authorities in that state are cooperating cordially with the American forces in the pursuit of Villa. The planes carried dispatches to the constitutionalist authorities which General Pershing described as important.

Pershing's Drive Continues. San Antonio, April 10.—Army officers of General Funston's headquarters were almost convinced today that the American forces in the pursuit of Villa, which have reached General Pershing's headquarters, will have reached a critical stage. No reports from Pershing were received last night or early today, but those which have reached General Pershing indicate he is driving his cavalry farther and farther into Mexico without question and in spite of increasing danger to the commissaries and the rear of the column. They may be beyond the reach of the commissaries and the rear of the column with adequate support.

General Pershing appeared convinced when he sent his last report that Villa is moving into two or three days' march ahead of the American advance column and making good time notwithstanding his reported wounded leg.

Reyes Joins Villa. Unofficial reports that Camilo Reyes was moving northwest of the region about Torreon instead of surrendering to the de facto government, created some uneasiness at headquarters, where it was realized that Reyes' juncture with Villa would provide a formidable front to the little cavalry force feeling its way along the new trails in the neighborhood of Paral.

To reinforce the head of General Pershing's column is impossible, officers here declared, unless more troops are sent into Mexico. The arrangement of the long thin line of communication is authorized. The rumors that the de facto government is becoming impatient of the continuance of the man hunt have reached headquarters. The present method of handling supplies for the troops is entirely inadequate, it is said.

Two more companies, fifty-six auto trucks, were at Columbus today ready for service along the line. Their use, it was admitted, will be of assistance in solving the supply problems.

Expect Early Capture. Washington, April 10.—Optimism for the early capture of Francisco Villa by the official forces today despite the fact that the government has received news of operations of American troops in Mexico, has come to the war department.

Many Mexicans believe that important military developments may have occurred and that it was impossible for the extreme advancing columns last reported close on Villa's heels, near Paral, to communicate with their field base.

Salazar's Plane Hostile? El Paso, April 10.—There was considerable mystery today over the reported crossing of the border by General Ynes Salazar, former Huerta general, who was said to have gone into Mexico with an avowedly hostile intention toward the United States.

The story of the plane was told to the police by a man once closely associated with Salazar. After investigation the police announced they believed the story to be true. A proclamation was discovered purporting to be signed by Salazar, in which he called on all patriotic Mexicans to join him in the protection of Mexican soil.

San Antonio, Tex., April 10.—The two companies of the 24th infantry, a negro organization stationed at Del Rio, were withdrawn by General Funston and sent to the Mexican border to assist along the line of communication. This decision was reached only by request for their removal by the military night that was preceded by the killing of one of the soldiers by a Mexican sharpshooter.

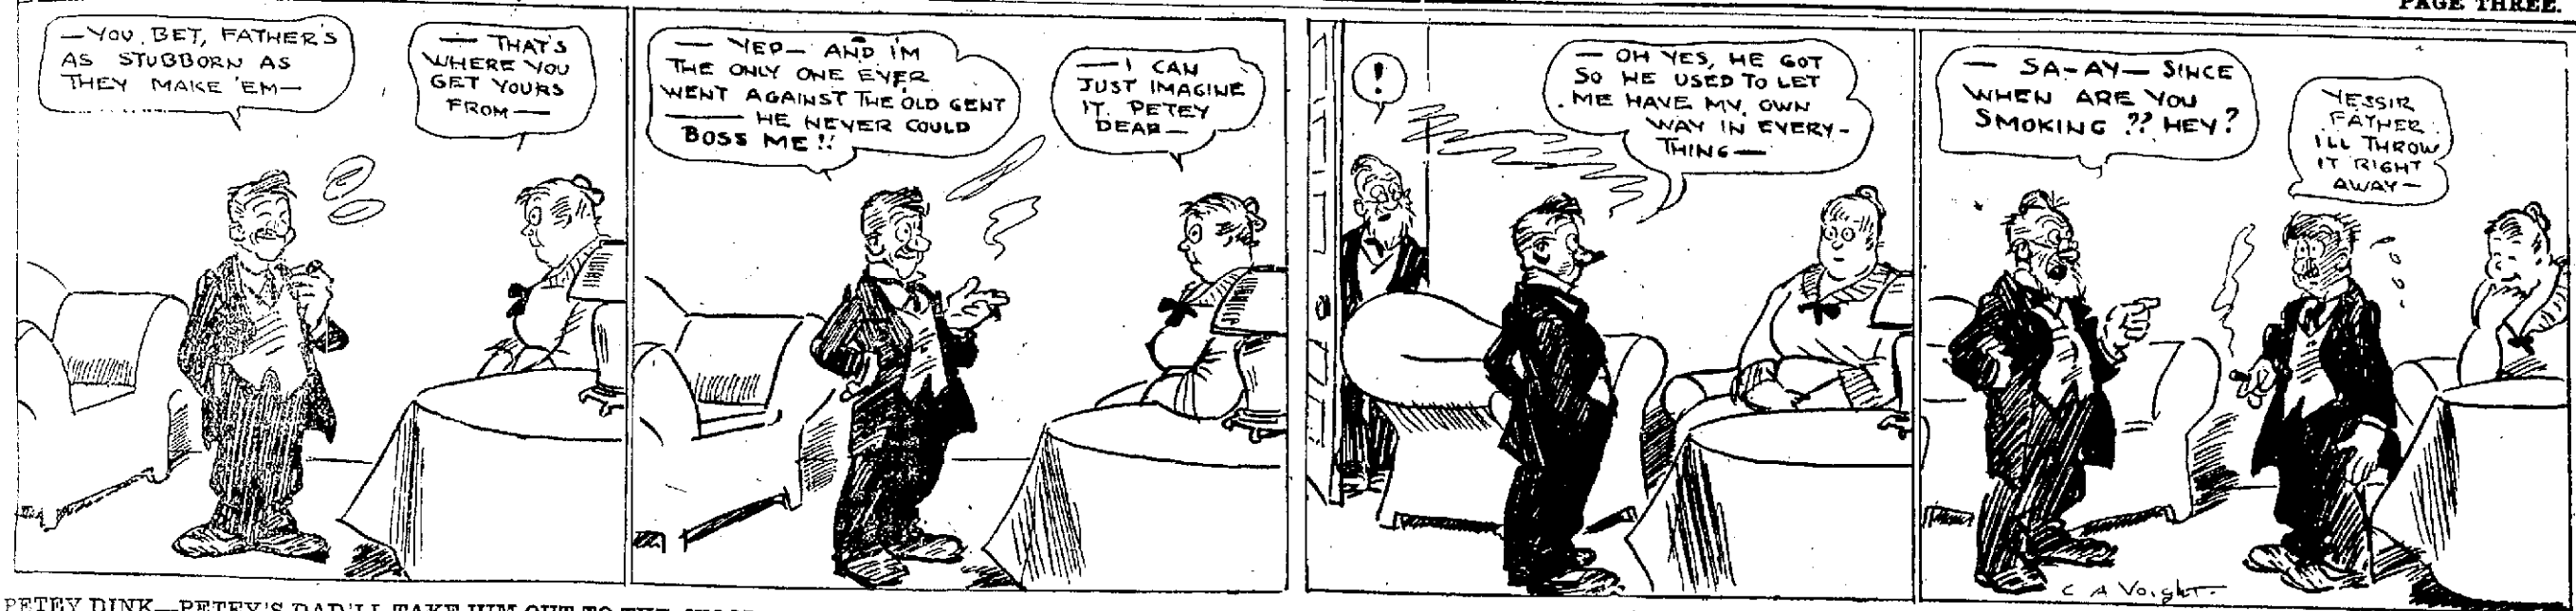

Another Report. El Paso, Texas, April 10.—Reports that the Villa is in the neighborhood of Paral or had passed it were brought to Guadalupe today by one of the officials at Maera.

CARS AGAIN RUNNING AFTER TWO WEEKS OF SUSPENSION OWING TO LABOR DIFFICULTIES. Toledo, April 10.—Toledo's street cars began running today after being out over two weeks, owing to difference between Toledo's Railway & Light Company and its recently reorganized employees.

LAKOTAS WIN WILD GAME BY GUARDING BY A TRIPLE COUNT

Fogarty's Team Is Defeated in Deciding Game—Near Riot Follows Mix-Up in Second Half.

Eight hundred spectators saw an exhibition of basketball, basketball and a free-for-all that came near being a riot, when the Lakota Cardinals triumphed Fogarty's team at the Auditorium Saturday night by the score of 19 to 6. The battle royal was the most exciting feature, but the trouble was most regrettable to say the least, and did not reflect credit to the standing of basketball in this city. The Lakotas had no trouble in defeating the invaders. Their guarding and defense work was nothing short of wonderful. They held the crack Rockford team to two field goals and three free throws in the first three minutes of play. With Edler and Dalton playing back on defense, Rockford never had a show to come near scoring enough points to win the game and it was only through their cunning at guarding and their fighting tactics that kept the Lakotas from giving them an unmerciful defeat by piling up the points. Had the Lakotas had luck at baskets and been able to shoot with their usual accuracy, the score would have been about fifty points instead of nineteen, as they had six shots to where Rockford had one.

Fogarty Starts Something. The trouble brewing between the two teams broke out in a slam-bang mix-up the last half. All during the game, Fogarty pursued his usual style of play, using his cunning, tripping and once in a while putting his fists and knees with force into the Lakota players. Dalton kept the veteran away from the goal, and defeat was going to the Rockford captain every minute of play. In a scrimmage over the ball at the upper end of the court, Dalton was mixing with two Rockford players and when the whistle blew he threw the ball up. Fogarty lost his head and made a murderous swing at Dalton. That intent to do great bodily harm was the climax. Fogarty and Dalton started to hold a free exhibition of the prize ring until stopped by the other players and Referee Langdon.

Fouls were called and Fogarty began snarling and shouting. He held little conference, then walked over and Young is alleged to have called Langdon an extremely infamous name. Several blows were struck and then the audience began cheering and waving the flag and had Fogarty and Young continued their ranting, trouble would have been certain, for the language used by these two players was most obscene and libelous. The situation was settled by Manager Calkins and the game resumed. Janesville has seen enough of Fogarty on the basketball court, for he carried his pugnacity entirely too far Saturday night and in the future, if he ever plays here again, he is earnestly requested to exhibit hisistic inclinations in some other place besides a basketball court.

Great on Defense.

The Lakotas were great on defense, but very poor on offense in the game. Edler, Wood and Hemming missed a million shots that would have been easy had they been practicing during the last two weeks. However, the ball was passed to the goal, and the goal, for no less than twenty-five times it rolled out of the rim on shots that looked certain to go through.

Starting with a rush, the visitors scored two goals and a foul throw before the Lakotas could get a good opportunity to count. Young tossed in one of those brilliant counts and Murphy slammed home a goal, when Sands called to cover him under the goal. Young dropped in the foul and the score stood five to nothing. That tells the complete story of Rockford's playing, outside of their desire to make a football game of the contest.

It was ten minutes before Edler and Atwood tried the count and then it was easy sailing. The indomitable guarding of the Lakotas baffled every attempt Rockford made to count. Edler and Atwood scored four baskets apiece and Sands, former Wisconsin varsity star, scored one over Young. Hemming missed five fouls and out of five shots at the goal, he scored one. The first half ended eight to five and in the second the Lakotas scored eleven points to a lone one for Fogarty's All Stars.

Game Summary. Lakotas—Atwood, rf; Sands, lf; Hemming, c; Edler, rf; Dalton, lg. Rockford—Fogarty, rf; McCaffery, lg; Murphy, c; Garrity, rf; Young, lg.

Field goals—Edler, Atwood, 4; Sands, Murphy, Young, 1. Foul goals—Young, 1 out of 5; Edler, 1 out of 2. Fouls called—One Rockford, 5; on Lakotas, 3. Referee—William Langdon. Attendance—807.

Between the Rounds.

The results of the boxing exhibition following to official reports are: Kid Dalton shaded Bartling Fogarty champion of Rockford; Langdon and Young, in the semi-final, fought a draw as far as it went.

If the citizens would volunteer for the army as quickly as they did at the rink Saturday, Pancho Villa would now be occupying a grave instead of the front page. The fans hold no love for Fogarty, but it looked as if Dalton did not need any help from his district, the "ninth ward".

The players suffered from the hard playing, as they are not trained for a contest demanding such an amount of lung power as the one Saturday night. Atwood battled one to the basket over Fogarty in jumping and this did

GREYS ARE DEFEATED BY RED SOX, 10 TO 4

Viney Pitches Good Ball for Red Sox and They Add Second Game to Their Credit.

In the fifth inning the Janesville Red Sox pounded out six runs off Tim McCue, pitching for the Greys, and the Red Sox romped home with their second victory of the season, as they defeated the Janesville Greys by the score of ten to four. Southpaw Viney outpitched McCue and Clapworthy and for two wabbling periods, pitched airtight ball.

The Greys got a good start in the first and second innings by counting one run each round. McCue blanked the Sox until the stormy inning, the fifth. Five Red Sox slugged off two baggers that netted five runs and from then on the game was rosy for the red-sox team. Viney started out with his first victory by getting fourteen strikeouts while McCue got six whiffs to his credit, but he walked half a dozen of the Red Sox. McGinley, the Sox third sacker, turned his ankle in the ninth inning and may not be able to play for a week or more.

The lineup were as follows: Greys—Huggins, rf; Fleming, ss; Dopp, lb; Britt, 2b; Hill, c; Jung, 3b; McCue, p; Skelly, cf; Clapworthy, lf. Red Sox—Roberts, lf; Miller, lb; Kakuske, 2b; Jackson, ss; Spohn, c; McGinley, 3b; Fullerton, rf; Hoveand, 2b; Viney, p.

Red Sox..... 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Greys..... 1 1 0 0 0 0 1 1 1

Two baggers—Miller, Spohn, McGinley, Kakuske, Fullerton and Dopp.

THREE MORE PLAYERS ARE ADDED TO EVANSVILLE CLUB.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Evansville, Ind., April 10.—With the signing of three players, President Harry Stahlhofer, of the Evansville Central league club, has announced that he has filed the roster of his team for the 1916 season. The three men recently signed are: Chas. Wheatley, a pitcher of New Orleans; James Whelan, of the Denver Western league club, and Al O'Dell, of the San Antonio team of the Texas league.

GOODWIN SELLS FAMOUS RUSS W. FOR FIVE HUNDRED.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New Castle, Ind., April 10.—Maurice Goodwin, of this city, has sold his five-year-old trotting horse, Russ W., to Bert Whitely, a Muncie (Ind.) horseman, for $500. The horse won the road race here last fall and is considered a good prospect by local breeders.

HANDICAP BOWLING TOURNAMENT OPENS IN CITY OF RACINE.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Racine, Wis., April 10.—Thirty teams are expected to participate in the handicap bowling tournament tonight in which Danish bowlers from Racine and Kenosha will contest for honors.

NEW POWER BOAT WILL BE NAMED "MISS MINNEAPOLIS".

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Minneapolis, April 10.—Within the next few days the committee which has been raising funds for the purchase of a highpower motorboat to represent Minneapolis at all the big powerboat races during the coming season, will place the order for the construction of the vessel. "Miss Minneapolis", as the boat is to be called, will cost approximately $10,000. One half of this amount has been raised and Dr. Francis Schefcik, who is heading the movement, expects pledges for the remaining $5,000 very shortly.

HERMAN BRONKIE QUILTS BASEBALL FOR GOOD.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Indianapolis, April 10.—Herman Bronkie, captain and third baseman on the Indianapolis American Association team, has quit baseball, according to an announcement received here from his home in Hartford, Conn. During the last half of last season Bronkie suffered a slump and his contract offered him by J. C. McGill, owner of the Indians, was not as lucrative as last year's. Manager Hendricks of the Indians expects to play Cozy Dolan at the third station.

TWIN CITY DRIVING CLUB WILL SCHEDULE RACE MEET.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Minneapolis, April 10.—The Twin City Driving club has decided to hold a race meeting at the State Fair grounds track early in June. At a meeting here the by-laws of the club were so amended as to permit the early meeting and nearly $2,000 was subscribed to a fund to guarantee full payment of purses. Officers elected included E. J. Kelly, Minneapolis, president, A. C. McElwee, St. Paul, vice president, and B. E. Nowien, St. Paul, secretary.

MADDERN HAS BEEN SIGNED IN THE CENTRAL LEAGUE.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] South Bend, Ind., April 10.—Leonard J. Maddern, formerly owned by the Brooklyn National league club, has signed to pitch with the South Bend Central league club. He is a left hander and was with Terre Haute in the same league last season. The South Bend players have been ordered to report for spring training. Pending the rebuilding of the ball park, the men will take workouts at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The squad will number twenty men.

METHODIST MISSION IS FIRST TO SUBSCRIBE TO A NEW KOREAN SCHOOL FUND.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Seoul, Korea, April 10.—The American Methodist Episcopal mission is the first of the foreign missionary bodies to subscribe to the new Korean educational ordinance by which religious instruction is barred from all private schools. The ordinance gave ten years for compliance. It caused considerable discussion among American missionaries in the Orient, but Japanese officials have explained that the regulation was not aimed at religion. They maintained that the desire was to have all private schools, including the mission schools, conform in grade and curriculum with the government schools where religion is not taught.

The Methodist school has been converted into a higher commercial school, that is to say, a non-religious institution. Religious instruction will continue to be given to those desiring it, but this will be done in a separate building and outside the regular school hours.

SINGLE GRAVE LAST RESTING PLACE FOR BETROTHED COUPLE

MISS ELSIE JANE FATHERS and CHARLES FERN CARR TO BE BURIED IN DOUBLE GRAVE IN OAK HILL.

FUNERAL IS TOMORROW

Services at Methodist Episcopal Church.—Rev. Brigham and Rev. Willmann Will Conduct the Funeral.

Over a bright and happy future Providence yesterday beckoned with its hand of death, summoning eternally two young people in the most lamentable and tragic accident of Janesville in years. At that time when their outlook was brightest, Elsie Jane Fathers and Charles Fern Carr had been sweethearts for years, their first acquaintance being made while school mates together. Since that time they have been constant companions. They were betrothed and the wedding date, within a few short months, had been set. But the grim hand of death intervened and together they went to meet their Maker.

Arrangements for the funeral were completed by the bereaved parents of Miss Fathers and by the widowed mother of Mr. Carr. The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the Carroll Methodist Episcopal church. The pastor, the Rev. Francis H. Brigham, and the Rev. Henry Willmann of Trinity Episcopal church, will officiate, the services and deliver the funeral orations. Members of Odd Fellow lodge, of which Mr. Carr was a member, will conduct the last rites over his body at the grave.

It is expected that the double funeral will be the largest in the city in many years. Both were prominent socially and among their friends and acquaintances by the scores.

Today at the Fathers home at 525 South Main street, and at the home of Mrs. Carr, 829 Milwaukee avenue, the shades of death still keep the parents and the mother-in-law in a state verging on collapse. News of the tragedy came as such a shock that it will be long before they or the city will forget the young people, who went for a short pleasure ride.

Miss Fathers and Mr. Carr had attended the funeral of Miss Elizabeth Harris yesterday afternoon. With them were Mrs. Mothers. After the service, which was held at the home of Mrs. Mothers, the young couple, who were on their way to the funeral of Miss Harris, were struck by a car and killed.

Miss Fathers and Mr. Carr, previous to the Harris funeral, had been at the Grand hotel, where the former had an engagement with a traveling man. Mr. Carr left and it was here that the father heard the news over the telephone that his daughter had been killed. A terrible accident. Rushed to the scene, he collapsed when the realization came. His emotions beggar description.

Elsie Jane Fathers, who was beloved and esteemed as a friend by hundreds of acquaintances in Janesville. She was a member of the Trinity Episcopal church, a pleasant, agreeable and cheerful person, and by those characteristics which make friends and hold them through life.

Today her many acquaintances grieve over her death and offer their prayers of sympathy and condolence for her grief-stricken parents. Seldom has the death of one of Janesville's daughters caused so much sorrow in the city. On every hand today were heard kind words of her.

Miss Fathers had always made her home in Janesville and had been here until June 11, when she was thirty-two years of age. She was born here in 1884.

Her entire education was secured in the schools of Janesville. She was graduated from the high school in 1902, finishing with the class of 1902. After completing her schooling she began work with her father, James, who was then in the insurance business in the city of Janesville. She assisted him during all his terms of office. During her father's present duties as mayor, as well as served as his private secretary, and while working for him, she proved herself as a capable and devoted daughter.

While Miss Fathers made many close friends during her school days, her circle of acquaintances was greatly enlarged during her work in the city treasury department. She came in contact with practically every taxpayer of the city and once met, her friendship was never forgotten.

Miss Fathers was a member of Trinity Episcopal church. She was a frequent worshiper and always took an active interest in the church. From her intimacy with her church she moulded for herself a beautiful Christian character and found favor and respect through her devotion to the cause of righteousness.

She is mourned by her parents and by one brother, John T. Fathers, who resides at 1114 Wall street, in this city. A sister, Elsie May Fathers, died June 27, 1892.

Charles Fern Carr was almost as well known in Janesville as his fiancée, Miss Fathers. He, too, was prominent among the young people of the city, having lived here for slightly over twenty-five years.

He was the only child of his widowed mother, Mrs. Fidelity Carr, who lived at 829 Milwaukee avenue. His father passed away five years ago. He was two years Miss Fathers' senior, being aged thirty-five. He was born January 30, 1890, at Grand Mead, Minnesota, and came to Janesville with his parents when seven years of age.

He also received his education in the schools of the city and completed several years in the high school, although he did not graduate.

Mr. Carr had engaged in various occupations and at one time was a passenger brakeman on the Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. He was active in local Odd Fellow circles, being a member of Janesville City Subordinate No. 13, of Rock Island, and a camp member, No. 9, P. M. The respective lodges of which he was a member will meet this evening to arrange for representatives to attend the funeral on Tuesday afternoon.

All mourn.

The black shroud of mourning clothed the city hall this morning.

mind of all, was of grief and lamentation over the fate of the two victims of the terrible accident and the sorrow of the relatives.

No one remembered of ever seeing or hearing Miss Fathers say, or do, an unkind word. She was an authority on accounts of the city. She was familiar with every department of city government and a more accurate and accurate employee could not be found. She slight or make light of her duties.

"The respect and love that the city workmen held for her could be demonstrated better, than by the pall of silence that hovered over the city hall today. She never had other than a kind word for anyone.

"Question of a Cynical Judge" is Discussed by Methodist Minister—Meetings Each Evening This Week.

There were fully eight hundred persons in the audience at the Congregational church last evening for the first of the union lenten services which are being conducted by the Presbyterian, United Brethren, Methodist, Baptist and Congregational churches. The interest manifest in the gathering of Sunday evening augurs well for the services which will be held each evening this week at the Congregational church.

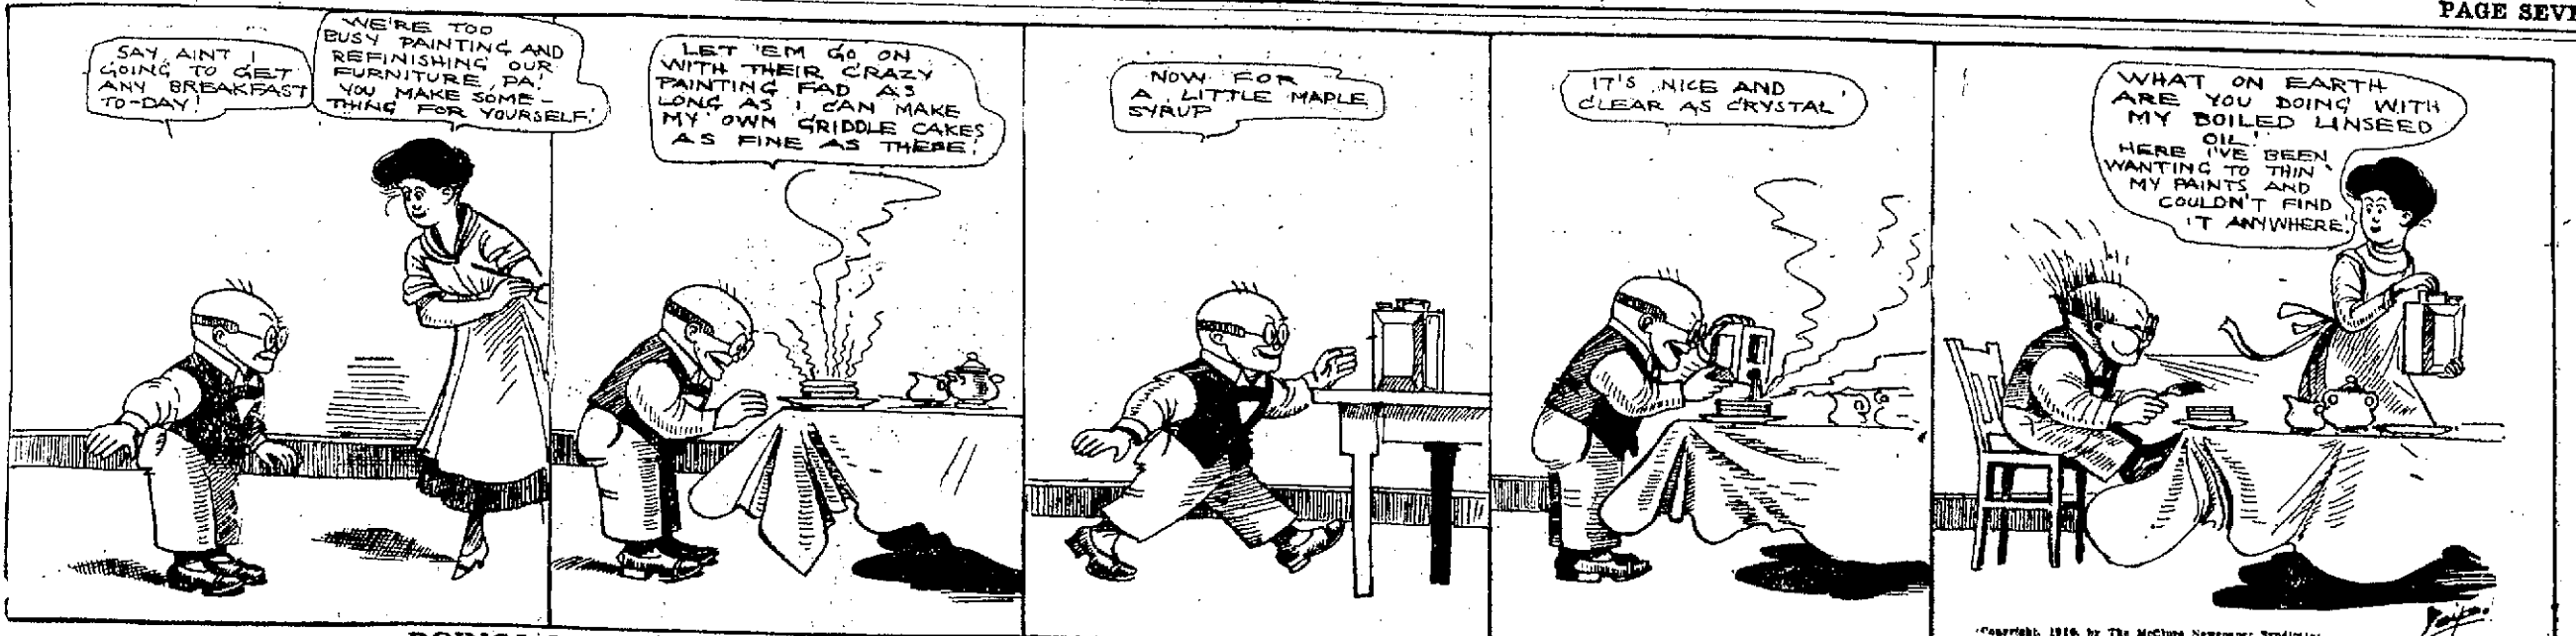

Reverend C. B. Ewing and H. C. Buell presided at the meeting last evening, prayers were offered by laymen, and the address on "The Question of a Cynical Judge" was delivered by Rev. F. H. Brigham, pastor of the Congregational church. He spoke in part as follows:

"It is somewhat remarkable that the man who is called a cynic, and who is looked upon as a man of no faith, and who is looked upon as a man of no conscience, and who is looked upon as a man of no honor, and who is looked upon as a man of no respectability, and who is looked upon as a man of no worth, and who is looked upon as a man of no value, and who is looked upon as a man of no use, and who is looked upon as a man of no importance, and who is looked upon as a man of no consequence, and who is looked upon as a man of no account, and who is looked upon as a man of no consideration, and who is looked upon as a man of no regard, and who is looked upon as a man of no esteem, and who is looked upon as a man of no respect, and who is looked upon as a man of no honor, and who is looked DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Under the Circumstances Father Should Have Been More Careful

BY F. LEIPZIGER

MOTHERS, DO THIS—

When the Children Cough, Rub Musterole on Throats and Chests

No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then when you're glad you have a jar of MUSTEROLE at hand to give prompt, sure relief. It does not blister. As first aid and a certain remedy there's nothing like MUSTEROLE. Thousands of mothers know it. You should keep a jar in the house.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Tonsillitis, Croup, Stiff Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Headache, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches of Back or Joints, Sprains, Sore Muscles, Chills, Frosted Feet and Colds of the Chest (it often prevents Pneumonia).

At your druggist's, in 25c and 50c jars, and a special large hospital size for $2.50. Be sure you get the genuine MUSTEROLE. Refuse imitations—get what you ask for. The Musterole Company, Cleveland, Ohio.

Unkind.

"Why, Mrs. Robinson says she would no more be without her chafing dish than without her planer!"

"H'm! If her friends could have their way she'd be relieved of both."

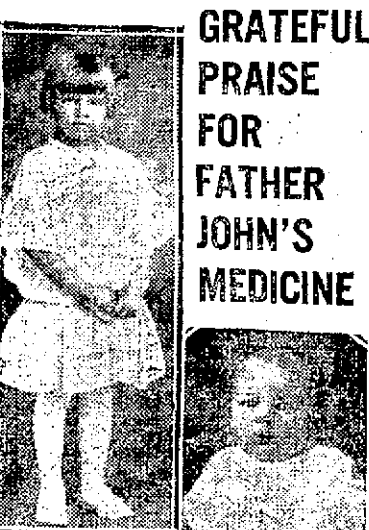

—Puck.

For Tired Women With Aching Heads

"They help me so much and I find relief as soon as I begin taking your Foley Kidney Pills. Mrs. Frank F. Wood, Morrill, Maine, R. E. D. No. 2. Sometimes it seems as if you can't stand the pain across your back. It is just making your life miserable and robbing you of all energy and strength. When you are constantly tired, head always aching, nerves 'on edge,' kidney action painful and burning, then is the time to start in at once on Foley Kidney Pills. They strengthen the weak, ailing kidneys, improve their action, enable them to do their duty, and cause your trouble. Your nerves grow peaceful, sleep becomes sounder, nervous headaches disappear. As Mrs. Wood says: 'I find relief as soon as I begin to take your Foley Kidney Pills.' Be sure you get the genuine Foley Kidney Pills for they are purely medicinal and contain no harmful drugs."

If you have any difficulty in securing Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.

INSIDE THE LINES

By EARL DERR BIGGERS AND ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Founded on Earl Derr Biggers' Play of the Same Name

Jane, frozen with horror at the man's approach, dodged and ran swiftly to the fireplace, where hung the ancient vespers bell. The flash light followed her every move, picked out her hand as it swooped down to seize a heavy poker standing in its rack beside the bell.

"Sahibah! Do not strike that bell!" The warning came sharp and cold as frost. Her hand was poised over the bell, the heavy stub of the poker a few inches away from the bell's flare.

"To strike that bell might involve in great trouble one who is scarce dear to you, Sahibah. Let us talk this over most calmly. Surely you would not desire that a friend—a veree dear friend—"

"Who do you mean?" she asked sharply.

"Ah—that I leave to you to guess! Jaimir Khan's voice was sullen. "But certainly you know, Sahibah. A friend the most important."

Then she suddenly understood. The Indian was referring to Captain Woodhouse thus glibly. Anger blazed in her.

"Sahibah, I am sorry to contradict," Jaimir Khan had begun a slow, steady creep toward her, his body crouching slightly as a stalking cat.

"I'll prove it isn't true!" she cried, and brought the poker down on the bell with a ringing clank. Like a toad came its answering alarm.

"A thousand devils!" The Indian leaped for the girl, but she evaded him and ran to the door, where she opened it and looked out into the night.

"Open this door! Open it, I say!" It was the general's voice, sounding muffled through the panels of his door. He rattled the knob viciously.

Jane tried to run to the door, but the Indian seized her from behind, thrust her aside, and made for the double doors. There his hand went to a panel in the wall, turned a light switch, and the room was lit up on the instant.

She stared at the light, and then, drenched with light, she saw a bundle of papers he was clutching. When Jane discovered him and which he had dropped during the ensuing tense moments, she stepped swiftly to the general's door and unlocked it.

General Crandall, clad only in trousers and shirt, burst into the room. His eyes leaped from the Indian to where Jane was cowering behind his desk.

"What the devil is this?" he rasped. Jane opened her mouth to answer, but the Indian forestalled her.

"The sahibah, General—I found her here before your opened safe."

"God God!" General Crandall's eyes blazed. He leaped to the safe, knelt, and opened it. A clever job, young woman!

Jane, completely stunned by the Indian's swift strategy, could hardly speak. She held up a hand, appealing for a truce. General Crandall eyed her with a frown, then turned to his servant.

"You have done well, Jaimir."

"It isn't true!" Jane stammered. The governor took a step toward her, almost lost in undue impulse to strike her, but he halted, and his lips curled in scorn.

"By gad, working with Woodhouse all the time, eh? And I thought you a simple young woman he had trapped and won't want to let go. You are a six hours ago. What a fool you are!" Jane impulsively stretched forth her arms for the mercy of a hearing, but the man went on implacably:

"You and all the time you were making one of me. Clever young woman, I say, that must have been a great joke for you—making a fool of the governor of Gibraltar. You make me ashamed of myself. And my servant—"

"Jaimir—here, it is left to him to trap you while I am blind. Bah! Jaimir, my orderly—at once!" The Indian smiled sardoniously and started for the double doors. Jane ran toward the general with a sharp cry:

"General—let me explain."

"Explain!" He laughed shortly. "What can you say? You come into my house as a friend—you beg me to—"

"You break into my safe—with Woodhouse, whom I'd warned you against, directing your every move. Clever!" Jaimir, do as I tell you. My orderly—at once!"

rest of your life. He still has a paper—a little paper he took from that safe. I saw him stick it in his sash. "Nonsense!"

"Search him!" The girl's voice cracked in hysteria. His face was dead white, with hectic burning spots in each cheek. "I'm not pleading for myself now—for you. Search him before he leaves this room!"

Jaimir Khan's strong hands on her arms to force her away from the door. His black eyes were laughing down into hers.

"Let me ask him a question first, General Crandall—before he leaves this room."

The governor's face reflected momentary surprise at this change of mood. "Quickly then," he gruffly conceded. Jaimir Khan stepped back a pace, his eyes meeting the girl's coldly.

"How did you come into the room—when you found me here?" she challenged. "The Indian pointed to the double doors over her shoulder. She reached behind her, grasped the knob, and shook it. "Locked," she announced.

"Why not?" Jaimir asked. "Locked them after me."

"And the general's door was locked?"

"Yes—yes!" Crandall broke in impatiently. "What's this got to do with—"

"Did you lock the general's door?" she questioned the Indian.

"No, Sahibah. You did."

"And I suppose you locked the door to Lady Crandall's room and my door?"

"If they, too, are locked—yes, Sahibah."

"Then why—Jane's voice quavered almost to a shiver. Why had I failed to lock the double doors—the doors through which you came?"

"The Indian caught his breath, and darted a look at the general. The Jaimir Khan, himself, stepped to his desk and pressed a button.

"Very good, remain here, Jaimir," he said. Then to Jane: "I will have him searched, as you wish. Then you go to the cells until I sift this thing to the bottom."

"General! You wouldn't dare!" She stood aghast.

"Wouldn't I though? We'll see whether—"

A sharp click sent his head jerking around to the right. Jaimir Khan, at the door to the general's room, was just slipping the key into the lock, after having turned the lock. His thin face was crinkled like old sheepskin.

"What the devil are you doing?" Crandall exploded.

"If the general sahib is waiting for that bell to be rung—he need not wait longer—it will not be answered," Jaimir Khan purred.

"What's this—what's this?"

"The wires are cut!"

"Cut? Who cut them?" The general started for the yellow man. The Indian whipped a blue-barreled revolver out of his broad sash and leveled it at his master.

"The sahibah! Sahib! I cut them. The sahibah's story is true. I saw her come in and found me at the safe."

"My God! You, Jaimir—you a spy!" The general collapsed weakly into a chair by the desk.

"Some might call me that, my General. Jaimir's weapon was slowly swinging to cover both the seated man and the girl by the door. "No need to search that drawer, General Sahib. Your pistol is pointing at you this minute."

"You'll pay for this!" Crandall gasped.

"That may be. One thing I ask you to remember. If one of you makes a move I will kill you both. You are a gallant man, my General; is it not so?"

"And we are going to think, my General," the Indian's voice purred on. "Where we wait we shall think. Who will General Crandall be after to-night?"

"The English sahib ruled the Rock the night the English fleet was blown into the harbor from the fortress? How many widows will curse when they hear his name?"

"Jaimir Khan, what have I ever done to you?" The governor's voice sounded hardly human. His face was blanched and purple.

"Not what you have done, my General—what the English army has done. An old score, General—thirty years old. My father—he was a prince in India—until his English army took away his throne to give it to a living brother. The army—the English army—murdered my father when he tried to get it back—called it mutiny."

"Ah, yes, an old score, but Jaimir, breath of Allah, tonight shall see it paid!"

The man's eyes were glittering points of white-hot steel. All of his thin white teeth showed like a hound's.

"You dog!" The general feebly wagged his head at the Indian.

"You dog, my General. Five years ago, my friend goes up the Rock—step—step—step. Closer—closer to the tower, my General. And Major Bishop—"

"What a fool I've been!" Crandall rocked in his chair, and passed a trembling hand before his eyes. Sudden, his bloodshot eyes to where the girl was stretched out, sobbing, across the desk. "Your man—the man you protected—it is he who goes to the signal tower, girl!"

"No; it can't be," she whispered between the rackings of her throat.

"It is! Only a member of the signal service could gain admittance into the tower tonight. Besides—who was it who went with Bishop down the Rock after the dinner tonight?"

"I sent Bishop with him—sent him to his death. He was tricking you all the time. I told you he was. I warned you for his own playing with you—using you for his own ends."

"It needed not the sledge-hammer blows of the stricken Crandall to batter Jane Gerson's heart. She had read too clearly the full story Jaimir Khan's sketchy comments had outlined. She knew now Captain Woodhouse, spy. The Indian was talking back. His words, dropping as molten metal upon their raw souls.

"Forty thousand men! A pleasant thought, my General. Eight minutes you're up the Rock to the tower when one was sent. And my friend, the move was—very fast. Eight minutes, and four have already passed. Watch the windows—the windows looking out to the bay. General and Sahib! They will flame—like blood. Your hearts will stop at the great noise, and then—"

A knock sounded at the double doors behind Jaimir. He stopped short.

"Ah! Listen! Without turning his eyes from the two he guarded, Jaimir asked: 'Who is it?'"

"Woodhouse," came the answer.

Jaimir's heart stopped. Crandall, frozen in his seat, Jaimir turned the key in the lock, and the doors opened. In stepped Captain Woodhouse, helmeted, armed with sword and revolver at waist. He stood facing the trio, his swift eye taking in the situation at once. Crandall half rose from his seat, his face apoplectic.

"Secret killer of men!" he gasped.

"Woodhouse paid no heed to him, but turned to Jaimir.

"Quick! The combination," he said. "Over the phone—afraid I might not have it right—stop—be there in less than three minutes if you can hold these people."

"Everything is all right?" Jaimir asked.

"You mean Bishop? Yes. Quick, the combination!"

Jaimir picked the slip of paper containing the formula from the edge of the desk, with his right hand, left hand and passed it to Woodhouse.

The latter stretched out his hand, grasped the Indian's with a lightning move, and threw it over so that the latter was off his feet. In a twinkling Woodhouse's left hand had wrenched the revolver from Jaimir's right and plinked it behind his back. The whole movement was accomplished in half a breath.

Khan knelt in agony, and in peril of a broken wrist, at the white man's feet, disarmed, harmless. Woodhouse put a silver whistle to his lips and blew three short blasts.

A tramp of feet in the hallway outside, and four soldiers with guns filled the doorway.

"Take this man!" Woodhouse commanded.

The Indian, in a frenzy, writhed and shrieked:

"Traitor! English spy! Dog of an unbeliever!"

The soldiers jerked him to his feet and dragged him out; his ravings died away in the passage.

Woodhouse brought his hand up in a salute as he faced General Crandall, Splendid. Has just been arrested, sir. Major Bishop has taken charge of him and has lodged him in the cells."

A high-pitched scream sounded behind Lady Crandall's door, and a pounding on the panels. Jane Gerson, first to recover from the shock of surprise, ran to unlock the door. Lady Crandall, in a dressing gown, burst into the library and flung herself on her husband.

"George—George! What does all this mean—yells—whistling—"

General Crandall gave his wife a pat on the shoulder and put her aside with a mechanical gesture. He took a step toward Woodhouse, who still stood stiffly before the opened doors; the dazed governor walked like a somnambulist.

"Who—who the devil are you, sir?" he managed to splutter.

"I am Captain Cavendish, General." Again the hand came to stiff salute on the visor of the plumed helmet. "Captain Cavendish, of the signal service, stationed at Khartum, but lately detached for special service under the intelligence office in Downing Street."

The man's eyes jumped for an instant to seek Jane Gerson's face, found a smile breaking through the lines of doubt there.

"Your papers! Prove your identity!" Crandall demanded, still in a fog of bewilderment.

Dinner Stories

A young woman with a notebook and a pencil entered the store of Jonathan Driggs, in a small Connecticut town, and said to the proprietor: "Good morning, Mr. Driggs. I'm looking up records of the early settlers of the town. Could you give me any information?"

The old fellow turned to the desk, thumbed the ledger, and chuckled: "Well, the earliest settler I've got is Doc Talcott, and his best record is three months."

Elizabeth Marbury tells this story of her experiences while trying to find a manager who would produce the play "The Optimist."

"I don't think much of the title," was the first manager's protest.

"Do you mean what it means?" asked Mrs. Marbury.

"Certainly," was the answer. "An optimist is a man who looks after the eyes, and a pessimist is a man who attends to the feet."

This reminded her of Wilton Lackaye's remark when asked if he had found a manager to produce "Les Miserables."

"Found one to produce it?" he answered. "Why, I haven't found one who could even pronounce it."

Desirous of buying a camera, a certain fair young woman inspected the stock of a local shopkeeper.

"Is this a good one?" she asked, as she picked up a dainty little machine.

"What is it called?"

"That's an old Belvedere," said the handsome young shopman, politely.

There was a chilly silence. Then the young woman drew herself coldly erect, fixed him with an icy stare, and asked again:

"Er—and can you recommend the Belva?"

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, April 10, 1876.—Some scoundrels broke into the commercial college last night and made away with a few inkstands and a book. No clue has been found of the culprits.

John Griffiths commenced to put on the metal roof of the cotton factory addition today. All the material has been received and a sufficient force will be employed to make quick work of the job.

The thermometer this morning at seven o'clock stood at forty four degrees above zero.

Rising Costs confront everybody!

This is an era of ascending costs, a period of price advancement without parallel. No statistical chart is needed to prove this—the effect of higher prices is felt by everyone, and is of real concern to all. It is a time for thoroughly weighing values, a time for taking advantage of every opportunity that offers a genuine saving.

Certain-teed Roofing lowers the cost of building

CERTAIN-TEED offers a substantial saving in roof construction, at this or any other time. It costs less to buy, less to lay, less to maintain and less per year of life. Because of tremendous production (the General makes one third of all the roll roofing made in America), and because of economies effected by enormous resources, modern machinery and favorably located mills, the General is able to make the best roofing at the lowest cost.

CERTAIN-TEED Roofing is the General's own product—from the raw materials to the finished rolls, it is made in the General's huge mills. It is made of the best quality roofing felt, thoroughly saturated with the General's own blend of soft asphalt and coated with an impervious covering of harder asphalt. This keeps the inner saturation soft, and prevents the drying out process so destructive to ordinary roofing. That's why CERTAIN-TEED outlasts other roofing. It is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years; according to ply. Experience proves that it lasts longer.

CERTAIN-TEED is sold by responsible dealers everywhere at reasonable prices. Investigate it before you decide on any type of roof.

Save rags—they're worth big money now!

Prices paid for rags eight times as high as a year ago. Rags! Rags!—got any rags? You're lucky if you have a lot of old rags around the place, because they'll bring you big money now—eight times as much as you used to get for them. Last year rags sold around 4c a pound, and manufacturers are glad to get them at that price. Rags form the basis of many well known products, such as writing paper, roofing etc. The roofing mills alone used a quarter of a million tons of rags last year. At present prices, this quantity of rags cost $12,500,000 more than a year ago—an increase in price of $40,000 a day for roofing. Boys and girls!—This is your chance to make some money. Get busy and hunt up all the rags you can find. Sell them! They'll bring you good money. If you are not offered their real value, write our nearest office.

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

—By—
MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to
MRS. THOMPSON
In care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Should a girl feel slighted if she does not receive candy, etc., from a boy who is attending high school?
(2) Should a girl and boy living in the same city correspond?

(3) If a girl is anxious to learn how to play the piano and a boy would like to teach her, although he is not very well acquainted, should he suggest that he would help her or should he wait until he is better acquainted, or should she suggest it?
(4) If it would be right to offer to give her lessons, should he go to her home to help her or would it be better to have her come to his place or her lesson days?
RIGHT.

(1) No.
(2) A boy and girl couldn't do anything much siller than correspond when they live in the same city and see each other.
(3) The boy should suggest it whenever he cares to be more than slightly acquainted before doing so.
(4) He should go to her home.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl eight years old and I am in love with a young man who said he loved me also. We went together four years and were engaged two years. He is the only boy I ever loved or ever can love. He is twenty-four years old. For about the last year that we went together I noticed that he had liquor on his breath when he came to see me and twice I met him on the street drunk. One night he phoned that he could not come to see me and I went to the picture show with my sister. When I came home I found a girl who is not respected and I think he had been drinking. We quarreled the next time he came to see me and then he did not come anymore. My father had to move out of town because his work took him there, and I went away without seeing the boy although I wrote him a letter telling him that I was sorry I had quarreled with him and that I still loved him and wanted to see him before I went. He did not come and I have not heard from him since although I sent him my address. I love him dearly and I am unhappy here because I haven't any boy friend. What can I do to win him back? He is the only gentleman friend I have ever had.

BROKEN-HEARTED GIRLIE.

The boy is unworthy of your love, girlie. Don't try to win him back. If you go to church and places where you can meet people, you will become acquainted and will soon have enough friends to make you forget the boy in the other town.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Should a boy who is sixteen take a girl to the movies?
(2) If a girl knows how to dance should she teach her boy friend?
(3) If a girl wishes to have her boy friend at her home should she ask him on the street or write him an invitation?
(4) When a fellow "sees" a girl home should he stand and talk with her or leave her as soon as they reach home?
U. R. RIGHT.

(1) No, he is too young.
(2) If he wants to learn.
(3) She should not ask him unless she wants him to come to a party and then she should write a note inviting him.
(4) He should leave almost at once unless she invites him to come into the house. He should not go in, however, if it is after ten o'clock.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been engaged to a young man two years and when he is out of town he goes with other girls. Is this right?
(2) I do not approve of it. Am I right to take this stand?
(3) Do you think he loves me if he disregards my feelings concerning this?
TIMID ONE.

(1) No.
(2) Yes. If he goes with other girls now when he is out of town, he will probably continue to do so after his marriage.
(3) An engaged man who loves the girl very deeply usually respects her wishes enough to give up other girls when she asks it.

Household Hints

YOUR GARDEN.
Transplanting of you wish to grow anything small for transplanting, such as pansies, cabbage, etc., break off the tops of eggs when using and empty the contents. Fill with soil and plant therein the seed. Set them in egg case and place in a sunny window. The long boxes (the one dozen cartons) will go nicely on window sills. When each plant is large enough, break the shell and set the plant out where you desire.
Plant a Row of radish seeds close to each row of parsley and carrots. By these are established the radishes are ready to be eaten.

CEMENT FOR CHINA.
Into a thick solution of gum arabic and water, stir thoroughly a plaster of paris until the mixture is of the consistency of cream. Apply this with a brush to the broken edges of china and join.

In three days the article cannot be broken in the same place. The whiteness of the cement adds to its value.

THE TABLE.
Curried Fish—Cook one teaspoon chopped onion in one tablespoon butter five minutes. Be careful not to burn it. Mix one teaspoon curry powder with one tablespoon oil. Add one teaspoon salt, and stir into the butter. Add one cup hot water gradually, stirring briskly to make a smooth paste. To this add one cup cooked, seasoned fish and serve as soon as the fish is thoroughly heated through.

Ladies' Aid Society Cake—One cup raisins, one-third cup lard, one cup brown sugar, one cup cold water, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon nutmeg. Put all together, boil three minutes, then let cool. Add two cups flour, one-half teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon soda dissolved in a little boiling water. Bake in deep pan forty-five minutes. Put white frosting on top. This makes a delicious cake.

Mock Sausages With Apple Rings—Soak half cup lima beans overnight. Drain and cook in salted water until very soft; drain and rub through strainer. There should be three-fourths cup of the pulp. To this add one-fourth cup of bread crumbs, three tablespoons thick cream or butter, one well-beaten egg, salt, pepper and powdered sage to taste. Roll in bread crumbs and fry in hot fat. Drain, place on platter and surround with fried apple rings.

Stuffed Onions and Ham—Boil three large Spanish onions whole in salted water until tender but not broken. Cool and remove centers carefully. Chop centers with three-fourths cup chopped ham, one teaspoon chopped parsley, one egg well beaten and sufficient cream to moisten. Mix thoroughly and fill onion shells. Place in a casserole side by side, sprinkle with flour and dot with butter. Bake in a little milk in bottom of dish and bake twenty minutes covered. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and brown, uncovered, ten minutes.

Bean Salad—One pint cold baked beans, one small onion minced fine, one-half cup diced cooked beef, one following dressing and cover the beans for garnish (will serve three people). Salad Dressing: Two raw eggs, one tablespoon butter, scant one-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoon mustard, eight tablespoons vinegar. Beat eggs with the sugar, wet mustard with a little cold vinegar, boil rest of vinegar, add other ingredients. Place bowl containing the dressing over hot water and stir until dressing is thick and creamy.

Ginger Sponge Cake—One-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup sweet milk, one-half cup maple syrup, one cup white sugar, one-third cup butter, one and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon cream of tartar and one-fourth teaspoon soda sifted together with the flour, two eggs, one scant teaspoon ginger, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves. Beat well. This makes a nice, large cake in shallow pan, is not expensive, and is fine when made right.

A Dollar-Meal For Five Cents. The most expensive foods are quite often entirely lacking in food value. They do not build muscle or supply energy. Measured by the cost of most foods, a breakfast or luncheon of Shredded Wheat with milk and cream is worth a dollar—and the cost is not over five cents. Two Biscuits will supply all the strength needed for a half day's work or play.

Kidnaped

NEIL HEARS THAT HER SUSPICIONS HAVE A GOOD FOUNDATION.

"Tell me all about it," said Neil, sitting herself by the bed where her friend lay in a darkened room. "I am over as soon as I saw the light. Why did you not come to our house for supper as I asked you to?" she continued.

MRS. EVA LEONARD

"We cannot board there, and this bids fair to be a regular business, this following up clues only to come against a stone wall," said Olive. "The strain of the last five days had told visibly on her strength. 'Did you not find out anything?' asked Neil anxiously. 'We found that Anna Ellison is the insane ward of the county hospital,' said Olive as quietly as if she were not exploding a bomb. 'You did?' gasped Neil. 'Tell me about it.'"

"When we got to Burleigh, Mr. Cane, the detective, spent some little time going over the ground that Gaylord had searched so carefully, until he too was convinced the lost baby was not there. No one had been there either, so he told Gaylord that we would go next to the county farm. You know the county farm of Burleigh county is only about a mile and a half from Burleigh on a road running straight west from there. Mr. Cane had a private interview with the superintendent of the farm while we waited in the auto outside. When they came out to the machine the superintendent said:

"I think the only way for you to proceed is to go through the wards and see if the woman in question is here. Of course we have no one by that name, but that's a nothing. An assumed name could easily have been given. We have a patient who came here under very peculiar circumstances. Over two years ago a farmer drove up to the hospital very early in the morning. He brought with him a semi-conscious woman whom he had found lying beside the road."

"Do you remember the date?" interrupted the doctor. "No, but I have a record of it," replied the man; "I'll look it up."

GINGLES' JINGLES

THE ANVIL CHORUS.

When you hear the anvil chorus busy pounding; when they get their hammers out and start to knock, you can hear their noisy clatter as they pull a line of chatter, that has got the nut-house beat a city block. They are always on the job a-pulling downward, all the things that's right and stands for what they should; you will find them always jerry to the stuff they ought to bury, heap to evil, never looking for the good. Every town has got this bunch of busy knockers always on the job to cop some geezer's goat; you will find them going to it, caring not how much they rue it, when they've got the goods they know will rock the bunk that's trashy, putting over stuff they know they ought to jug, making some unlucky mortal feel he never more will choke, when around their guffy guff he wraps his lug. It's a cinch they are a bunch of worthless fibbers, who should all be shucked and sent below to dry, there to roast and wait for others, of the busy knocking brothers who have made the anvil chorus hammers.

LADY FLORENCE BAKER DIES AT NEWTON ABBOT.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, April 10.—Lady Florence Baker, widow of Sir Samuel White Baker, author and explorer, who died recently at Newton Abbot, Devon at 74 years of age, was known as one of the most daring explorers. In 1861 she accompanied her husband upon an expedition for the discovery of the Nile sources. The party went on without interpreter or guide and in defiance of the opposition of the slave hunters who attempted to bar their progress. She also accompanied her husband when he commanded an expedition to Central Africa organized by the Khedive for the suppression of the slave traffic. She was the first white woman, as her husband was the first white man, to set foot in the region of the Albert Nyanza lake.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette.

MEDICAL VERSUS SURGICAL TREATMENT OF GOITRE.

At intervals we have stated that, of the three types of goitre, the simple goitre of young girls is curable by good general medical treatment plus patience; the cystic goitre, the largest goitre, is incurable by any known method except surgical excision; and the exophthalmic goitre, which is only part of a serious systemic disturbance shown by marked nervousness, palpitation, rapid heart, prominent or bulging eyes, tremor and general weakness, is curable in three-fourths of the cases by careful medical treatment plus complete rest, and in about one-fourth of the cases the disease is so severe, the general strength and life itself is so much endangered, that operation must be resorted to as a heroic measure.

Still a great many people write to ask if we will offer any recommendation a cure for goitre. As we ask a doctor to suggest a good remedy for general weakness or that tired feeling.

Sometimes even simple goitre, which causes no symptoms other than the annoyance of the large neck, is operated upon when it fails to respond to simple treatment, rather to improve the patient's appearance than for any other reason.

In the average surgeon's hands the operation is usually performed for exophthalmic goitre as fairly successful, though by no means a radical cure, such as you would expect in an operation for hernia or appendicitis. Thus, of 121 patients operated upon for exophthalmic goitre in one of our best clinics and traced afterward, 55 were reported cured; 22 patients continued at times to have mild relapses under the effects of over exertion, though pretty well most of the time; 7 were improved, but had still some evidence of the old trouble; 5 were slightly improved; 3 failed to derive benefit from the operation. 9 were operated upon a second time, 2 died of them soon after operation. Thus the operation for exophthalmic goitre is to be considered a fairly successful, but not a radical or surely curative treatment.

The best outlook for a patient with exophthalmic goitre is an course of medical treatment, aided by prolonged rest—an open-air rest cure, if possible, such as the commonly employed for incipient or early tuberculosis. This method of treatment gives 75 per cent. of cures, a better record than the best surgery can show—though of course surgery is the resort of the worst cases. The damaging element in exophthalmic goitre is the excessive secretion of the thyroid gland, which produces all the alarming symptoms. The enlargement of the neck may be so slight as to escape even a physician's notice, yet the patient suffers the nervous and circulatory symptoms in a marked degree. And the disease is seen in men and women, and from the age of three years to the age of sixty.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Cause of Apoplexy or Stroke of Paralysis.

What causes cerebral hemorrhage in a person with hard arteries? Is it a usual occurrence in persons so afflicted? Is it usually fatal?
Answer—Too hearty eating, alcoholic indulgence, constipation, anger, excitement, excessive exertion of any kind might cause the fragile blood-vessel in the brain to rupture and bleed—that is a stroke of paralysis, or apoplexy, or cerebral hemorrhage. It is a usual occurrence, but just as possible in a case of pronounced arterial disease. It is fatal in about a third of the cases.

Aspirin Depresses the Heart.
Please advise me if aspirin is a habit-forming drug, and if it weakens the heart.

Answer—It isn't, but some people do form the aspirin habit. Like all coal-tar derivatives, it is depressing to the heart. It is certainly not a drug to be taken without medical supervision.

Baby Has Head Sweats.
My baby, eight months old, has been raised on diluted cow's milk and linewater. What makes him sweat so at night, particularly about the head?

Answer—Probably insufficient nourishment. At eight months the baby should be taking nearly quite undiluted milk. Also some clear beef or mutton broth, fresh fruit juices, and, in some instances, fresh cream added to the milk. Head sweats suggest a tendency to rickets—which is due to faulty nutrition.

FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUB MEET IN STEVEN'S POINT.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Stevens Point, Wis., April 10.—The eighth district convention of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs opened here today. There are now nineteen clubs in the district, two having been added since the last meeting two years ago. The meeting will continue two days.

SIDE TALKS

—By—

SPECIAL PRIVILEGE.

In a city where I sometimes visit there lives a young man with a deep interest in local politics. Impossible for him to accept office himself, but he has given time, money and energy to help elect good men to the city government.

I admire this man. I wish we had more young men like him in every community instead of so many who are too lazy, or too selfishly busy, or too indifferent to the general welfare (and though they do not realize it, to their own welfare) to pay any attention to politics.

But the last time I visited in his neighborhood he gave me some interesting news. We were talking about dancing. A certain dancing place was mentioned. "No," he said, "I don't like to go there."

"Why not? I'm told the music is excellent."

"The Police Wouldn't Let Him Disobey the Law."

"Yes," said he, "but there's one thing I don't like. The police won't let you leave your machine outside."

"How can they prevent it?"
"Well, you know, there is a machine on the street more than twenty minutes, and the garage round the corner from the dance hall must be in league with the police, for they enforce it to the letter, and you have to put your machine in that garage and pay fifty cents if you only stay half an hour. I don't think it's fair. I think the dance-hall people ought to stand in with the police and protect their patrons."

He Didn't See Any Inconsistency.
He said it with the same fervor with which he pleads the case of his good government candidates. And he was evidently thoroughly unconscious of any inconsistency.

You can't have good government without the consent of the governed. You can't have it merely by having good men in the chief offices.

Each one of us can help get good government, not only by working good candidates, but also by obeying the laws. If we do not believe in a law, the thing to do is not to try to get out of obeying it, but to protest against it in some public way—by writing to the paper, by appealing to the city government, by talking to our neighbors about it.

A List of All People Disobeying City Ordinances.
A city solicitor once offered to show the new mayor a list of all the people who were violating city ordinances. The mayor saw the list, and the solicitor handed him the city directory.

The mayor of a certain well-known city brought out the same point in regard to unenforced laws when he tried to put the Sunday blue laws in force.

Of course many communities have too many laws. We are wont to feel that any evil can be remedied by legislating against it. Would it could! The first thing to do would be to make a law against humbug laws, and then to realize that legislation is only the first step, and that unwise, unenforceable legislation is the first step in the wrong direction. What we need is fewer laws, more to thought, enforcement, and more good citizens who are willing to make obedience to law their first contribution to good government.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 43.

No quantity of medicines or other substances added to a diet of sugary and starchy foods will maintain life, notwithstanding the fact that sugar and starch are rated as the principal high-calorie foods, and therefore looked upon by mistaken scientists as the most important of all foods.

It is not the phosphorus loss in the milling of wheat, the polishing of rice, the peeling of barley, or the degermination of corn which explains the inadequacy of such refined and denatured foods when consumed by man or animal.

Commenting on the phosphorus content of unpolished rice as an index of its fitness for food, Chamberlain states:

"The determination of any other element which chiefly contained in the pericarp, such as potassium, iron, calcium, etc., would be an equally good index of the safety of the rice." In other words, the food factory cannot remove any one element from the cereals prepared by it without also removing all of the other elements. They are so intimately bound up with each other that when one goes they all go. Therefore it is not phosphorus in itself that must be considered, or iron, or calcium, or any one of the other food minerals and vitamins; all of them together with such other bodies of unknown nature which natural foods contain, in order to determine the fitness of such foods for human consumption.

To over-emphasize the importance of ferments or vitamins or any one of the mineral salts is to cloud the whole issue of metabolism in mystery and darkness. One might as well over-emphasize iodine and ignore the vitamins as to over-emphasize the vitamins and ignore iodine.

We have already seen something of the thyroid gland and have learned that its healthful iodine content is much higher than in disease. It has been established, as we have seen, that the thyroid gland of animals fed on food natural to them contains, at different seasons of the year, a varying content of iodine.

It has also been established that the presence of iodine compounds in the thyroid is largely responsible for the normal functioning of that gland.

The manner in which iodine is completely removed from bread, biscuits, cakes, crackers, cookies, breakfast foods, cornmeal, pearled barley, rye flour, polished rice, pancakes, glucose, table syrup, sugar, candy, etc., influences the metabolism of the indispensable bodies vaguely hinted at through the experiments of A. I. Ushenko.

Ushenko found that "following thyroidectomy (which means the removal of the thyroid gland) the percentage relation of phosphorus to nitrogen in the urine is first increased, but then again is strangely diminished before death."

"The amino acids and purin bodies are increased while creatinin is diminished. The metabolism of the tissues containing phosphorus and nitrogen is acutely disturbed, the synthetic processes being mostly affected."

Here we behold the removal of an iodine-secreting gland affecting disastrously the interrelations of other parts of the body and modifying at once the nature and proportion of elements secreted and excreted by those other glands. Iodine in itself will not support life. Its combination with other elements is essential.

Chamberlain declares that Schumann's assumption that it is a phosphorus compound which prevents polyneuritis is not correct.

"A large number of substances," he says, "have been shown to be of no value in the prevention of polyneuritis. Among these may be mentioned potassium chloride, phosphoric acid, either singly or combined, potassium phosphate, either acetate or carbonate, magnesium phosphate, the phosphates of the lecithin group, nitrogen compounds, such as histidin, asparagin, and various amino acids (elaborated in the digestion of meat, eggs, cheese, etc.) potassium iodide, thyroid extracts, Romain's salt mixture, cod liver oil, ergosterin, or any combination of these substances."

The failure of vitamins, when consumed without the assistance of the other food elements necessary to normal nutrition, to perform the miracle of sustaining normal life and health requires little demonstration.

These vitamins, some of which, as isolated by Casimir Funk, are complicated chemical compounds occurring as colorless needle-shaped crystals with a melting point of 451 degrees Fahrenheit, when added to a diet of sugary and starchy foods will not maintain life, although sugar and starch are rated among the very highest of the "high-calorie" foods, and therefore are looked upon by mistaken scientists as the most important of all foods.

In fact, however high the calories, or however abundant the vitamins, unless the other food elements, so wantonly destroyed by food refinement, are present the body cannot make proper use of them.

The experiments of Voegelin and Towels with foods of "high-calorie" value deprived of their mineral content, demonstrate the inadequacy of the calorie theory.

These investigators found that "an aqueous extract of autolyzed spinal cord from which the coagulable protein has been removed contains vitamins or anti-neuritic substances which cure symptoms of polyneuritis in birds fed on polished rice when administered in daily doses corresponding to four grams of dried cord."

"These vitamins, or anti-neuritic substances, when added to a diet of polished rice, seem capable of removing some of the nervous symptoms of disease, but fail absolutely to establish normal metabolism and the affected birds do not recover."

This is known. The simplest of natural foods contain all the mysterious, physiologically active principles required to maintain normal health. Still we find scientists blindly rummaging through fields of experimental darkness seeking complicated and high-sounding explanations for phenomena so humble on the surface and so majestic at the core that they have defied, so far, all the cross-examinations, all the probeings, all the analyses, and all the theories of man.

The grain of wheat simply asks to be left alone. The other cereals cry out to humanity, "We are sufficient in ourselves; do not change our nature; do not manipulate our functions; do not destroy those potent forces which we have brought forth from the bowels of the earth for the food of man."

In vain shall we seek for peace, while we are at war with the laws of God. Scientific phrases are not substitutes for the laws of life, howsoever they may cloak our ignorance of the glory of the eminent members of that august inner circle of established reputations whose mighty wisdom, ignoring the simplest laws of life, classifies with the all-sufficient but hidden purposes of the Creator.

The shadow cannot ignore the substance; the dream cannot ignore the reality; the reflection cannot ignore the flame. The lone of the libraries cannot ignore the miracle found in a drop of milk or a grain of wheat.

Real science, in all the humility of true greatness, suggests in what it is vain to the welfare of the world an image of the divine but the scientific confusion which has complicated the dietary of nations is but a modern Babel. How true these statements are we are about to see.

Once the villa of the third Marquis of Hertford, the "Steyne" of Vanity Fair, it is now the London home of Otto Kahn, the American financier, who has loaned it to the Blind Soldiers and Sailors Care committee, under the chairmanship of C. Arthur Pearson, widely known as a publisher, and president of the National Institute for the Blind. About the spacious villa are fifteen acres of well kept lawns, trees and shrubbery. An arm of Regent's Park lake runs into the grounds, thus affording facilities for boating. All this is at the disposal of the blind men and they have been surrounded by an atmosphere that is distinctly homelike.

What member of the Yankees has made the biggest hit with the southern fans during the exhibition games the Yankees have staged—Baker, Fritz Malsel or Wild Bill Donovan? Of these, Germany Schaefer, with his comical stunts, is the biggest hero, besides with the team say.

NEW CITY COUNCIL HOLD FIRST MEETING LAST NIGHT

Clinton, April 10.—The new city council met in special session Friday night and transacted a large amount of important business. The first order of business was the election of a committee of one to investigate the work of the civil engineer who did the survey for the sewerage system at that place.

The purchase of three city lots on Front street adjoining the city pumping station on the east was consummated. This lot is the city all the property from Ledkas blacksmith shop to Church street.

It was also voted to build the new jail ordered by the state board of correction, to be built on the east side of the city, to be placed on one of the lots just mentioned.

Two foreign electric service companies are desirous of obtaining a franchise in Clinton and that subject was discussed at length but no action was taken.

Personal.

Ed. Sweet and family have moved to Clinton from Allen Grove and occupy the house on South Durand street, owned by Miss Katherine Williams.

Mr. Sweet is employed by the Bowman Creamery Co.

C. A. Strong will move here as soon as he can get possession of the West-by house on Pleasant street, which is now occupied by G. E. Crabtree and family. Mr. Strong who has taken a position with the Bowman Dairy Co. has been living at Rochester, Wis., for 12 years.

A. L. Larson and Miss Jennie Jensen who are attending the three C business college in Madison are home on an enforced vacation caused by the building in which they are located having been damaged by a fire. It is believed that a week or ten days will be necessary to repair the damage.

Eddie Furset, the 15 year old son of C. J. Furset just south of village limits had the misfortune of breaking his leg while playing basketball Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A. gym. He is now in the hospital.

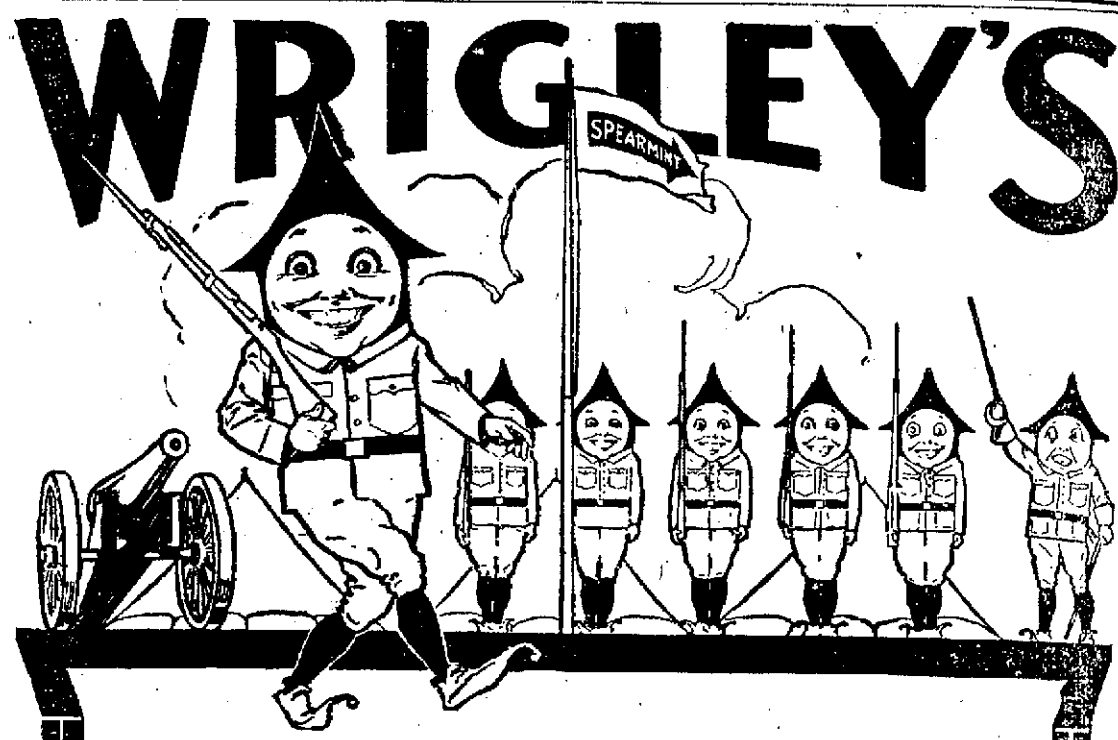

Mr. A. B. C. met with Mrs. F. W. McKinney Thursday afternoon. Supper was served at the Hotel Sylvan. Mrs. W. H. Hughes won the high score although handicapped by 200 on account of former victories. Mrs. Hughes also won the evening score.

The Clinton Telephone Co. is employed by the Clinton Telephone Co. cut the right cheek open for about an inch and a half, which required a couple of stitches to close. Yesterday afternoon by cranking a car with the end of a crank which flew off and the end struck him in the face with the above painful result.

Work has been commenced on the extension of the Clinton Telephone Co. to be made this summer on the Clinton Telephone Companies system. Mr. McKinney is not satisfied with anything short of perfection.

QUESTIONS ABOUT FOOD

Answered by Alfred W. McCann.

Q. Do olives make good food? I am very fond of them, but somehow or other they don't seem to agree with me. They taste nothing like the olive which comes from them, and I don't understand why this should be so. If olive oil is such good food why are olives not just as good?

A. I assume from your question that you refer to pickled or brined olives, the kind that are sold in glass bottles, cap to the teeth. As to the taste, and green in color. As a matter of fact, they are not good. If you would take the peach while it was a mere woody pulp, as green as grass, and as hard as a baseball, treat it with a solution of sodium hydroxide, and then pickle it in brine, you would get something that resembled ripe peach just about as much as the pickled olive resembles the black, delicious, and ripe olive.

Green olives do not compare with ripe olives as food. California has recently seen the light and is now putting up ripe olives. People who can acquire a taste for the briny green olive are quite apt to rave over the real ripe olive, the flavor of which and the food value of which are incomparably superior to the silly things that people are accustomed to call olives.

It is very strange fact that the countries that produce the brined diet.

olives that are shipped to the United States are consumed on such a large scale here do not eat them themselves. I know many olive exporters and importers. They actually laugh at the taste of the American public for their queer products and wonder if the people will ever open their mouths and see the difference between the ripe olive as it should be consumed, and the sad absorption which is consumed.

Q. Why are fruits and vegetables essential to a well-balanced diet?

A. In the first place both fruits and vegetables are mild laxatives when consumed in sufficient quantity, and in the case of fruit when thoroughly ripe. They contain considerable quantities of cellulose. Fruits and vegetables are rich in potassium salts and yield base-forming elements which much to counteract the acid reactions which follow the consumption of meats, sweets and white breadstuffs.

Fruit and vegetable eaters have better nerves, greater stamina and are not subject to doubt superior health, compared with similar types who eat meat two or three times a day. The American public eats entirely too much meat.

The more fruits and vegetables that appear in the diet the less is the inclination to consume meat in excessive quantities.

It is for this and other reasons that fruits and vegetables occupy such an important place in a well-balanced diet.

WALWORTH

Wauwatosa, April 10.—Mrs. Rose Ripley will soon break up housekeeping in the Clark flat and move to Pontona.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hasting of Darien, were guests at the O. Jayner home Thursday.

Miss Emeline Church and Miss Emma Porter are numbered with the sick.

Orrie J. Gates of the Chicago Dental college, spent the week-end with his parents and attended the dancing party Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goodrich and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goodrich, spent Monday in Chicago, stopping and sight-seeing.

Williams Bay is to have a $12,000 school house, to be built this summer. The people of Walworth circulated a paper last week for signers, requesting the school board to build a C. Parish, as principal of the school.

His efficient services the past two years are appreciated by the parents, and the paper was unanimously signed for his return next year.

Mr. J. W. Vesson has been very ill with throat trouble, but is improving. Mr. and Mrs. O. Jayner have returned from Sharon and vicinity, where they visited a week.

Clarence Alger and wife of Chicago, spent the week-end and the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Ingalls.

Miss Jean Radebaugh was hostess on Saturday p. m. to a birthday party in honor of her seventh birthday anniversary.

Women Are Enthusiastic Over These New Silk Suits at $24.75

You can't beat them for style; and they were bought at a price concession by Mr. Bridges in New York just the other day. They are one of the best offerings we ever made.

The suits are silk, fast color, semi-tailor made, belted with wide flare skirt; colors are green, brown, black and navy in taffetas and poplins. Owing to the scarcity of silks and in the face of the highest market in years these suits are positively the greatest values in Wisconsin at this low price, $24.75.
